PORCELAIN

Whiteness, glass like translucency and strength are some of the qualities that attract many potters to porcelain.

However due to the very nature of the raw materials used in its production, most porcelain bodies have very little natural plasticity. To overcome this, many manufacturers add ball clay, thus sacrificing translucency and whiteness.

We have found that by using the best and lowest iron bearing china clays, silicas, mineral fluxes & bentonites, we have produced a body that is very white, translucent and plastic.

We feel that our new Glacier White Porcelain is one of the best porcelain bodies you will find anywhere.
